Miele Broadens Ventilation Line with Range Hood Options

Increased Capabilities for Higher Grease Extraction and Professional Performance

Princeton, NJ – To coincide with the launch of Miele’s line of Ranges, the company is launching complementing ventilation options with a similar professional design and performance.

Precise Performance

The new Range Hoods feature a dishwasher-safe baffle filtration system for optimal grease separation and easy maintenance. To account for the increased BTUs available on the Ranges and Rangetops, corresponding Range Hoods are capable of higher CFM outputs ranging from 700-1,100 CFM.

Innovative Functionality

To ensure ideal ventilation performance, the units have an Auto-Vent Safety Sensor that reacts to intensify the level extraction whether the unit is initially switched off or on a lower setting. New LED ClearView lighting is available on all units and provides the perfect illumination of the cooking area for all widths available.

Harmonious Design

Keeping in line with the company’s “Design for Life” philosophy, the Range Hoods come in several assortments to integrate into any kitchen configuration. The hoods are available in M Pro Stainless Steel or as an insert to be integrated into cabinetry and range from 30, 36 and 48 inches. Like all Miele hoods, Range Hoods are assembled and milled by hand by skilled craftsmen to ensure complete quality assurance.

The Range Hoods feature Miele’s CleanCover, a smooth liner inside the canopy that prevents exposure to live components while ensuring effortless cleaning.

A recirculation kit is also available to fit with each size variation.
